Report: Certification Course on Impact of Artificial Intelligence on the Legal Field

Students enrolled in the Certificate Course on "Impact of Artificial Intelligence on the Legal Field" were given a thorough understanding of the significant influence that AI has on the legal industry. Students participated in a ten-day course of lectures, panel discussions, and hands-on activities designed to familiarize them with the fundamental ideas of artificial intelligence (AI) and its particular applications in the legal field. Assistant Professor Tanavi Naik conducted the course. The course was conducted from 2 - 12 January 2023.

Students actively investigated the moral and legal issues that arise when artificial intelligence is used in the legal system for the whole course. Talks about bias, fairness, and openness in AI algorithms stimulated contemplation and critical thinking about the ramifications AI-driven legal decision-making may have for society. Students learned a great deal about the prospects and practical problems of incorporating artificial intelligence (AI) into legal practice through studying real-world case studies and conversing with guest speakers from the legal sector.

Outcome

Students could apply their newly acquired information to real-world situations through practical exercises like case prediction, document analysis, and legal research. A total 34 students completed the course. Students gained confidence in using AI technology to improve legal services and developed technical abilities by working with AI tools and platforms. The course also enabled students to imagine their future duties as legal professionals in a legal environment becoming increasingly technology-driven by fostering conversations on the future of AI in law.
